

Golf Scene Ltd

P. O. Box 5680

Inverness

IV2 5YJ

Tel: +44 (0)1463 790660

GENERAL R & E

10 questions

(The number in brackets refers to the section and question number on The Golf Scene DVD-ROM)

Q1. (AA Q1)

Ryan is trying to chip over the bunker onto the green but miss-judges his shot.
How should he have reacted?

- A. Lost his temper, broke his club then apologised to his partner?
- B. Lost his temper but not showed it outwardly?
- C. Calmed himself and accepted it was a bad shot but be grumpy for the next few holes?
- D. Accepted it was a bad shot, forgot about it and carried on enjoying the round?

A INCORRECT ANSWER

Not a good way to react. You should never lose your temper as it can affect your partners game as well as your own.

B INCORRECT ANSWER

Even losing your temper and keeping it to yourself is bad. At the very least it will affect your game for the next few shots and could go from bad to worse.

C INCORRECT ANSWER

Accepting it was a bad shot is good but being grumpy for the next few holes would still affect his game.

D CORRECT ANSWER

It may be difficult but the best thing to do if you play a bad shot is forget about it immediately. Be positive and you will improve!

POINTS FOR DISCUSSION

Losing temper – effect on your round and effect on partners